

28 December 2018 / 17 Questions 175

To communities in the Lower Mainland

Dear Bahá'í Friends,

From time to time, the National Spiritual Assembly meets as an institution in other parts of the country, allowing an opportunity to meet with institutions and agencies, groups of friends and the community in general. One such meeting will take place the weekend of 11-13 January 2019 in Vancouver, and we have the added gift of meeting with both Counsellors at that time.

We therefore extend to your communities a warm and loving invitation to meet with the Counsellors and National Assembly Friday evening, 11 January, at 7:30 p.m., at the Vancouver Bahá'í Centre. The Assembly will share some news from across the country and also hopes to hear from the friends present, particularly about efforts to teach and engage friends and acquaintances in the community-building work in this precious period leading up to the bicentenary of the Birth of the Báb in October 2019.

We look forward to being in your presence very soon, with great joy.

With loving Bahá'í greetings,

Karen McKye, Secretary